Wild bear relaxes

A family in Florida had an unexpected dinner guest. A black bear relaxed in the family's garden hammock. He looked like a tourist.

After 20 minutes, the neighbours turned on their lights. The bear was scared and ran away. Half an hour later, he came back.

The bear also likes to look for food in bins, so the family took down the hammock, and people removed their bins.

Bizarre sports

The 38th World Toe Wrestling Championship was held in a pub in England. It was not the most renowned sport, but people had a lot of fun.

The competitors' feet were between two boards. They made the other person's ankle touch the other side of the board. Everybody thought that big toes were an advantage. However, the world champion said that short, stubby toes were the best. He said that long toes snap easier.

Another bizarre sport event took place in England. It was the shin-kicking championship. Competitors kicked each other in the shins to make the other one fall over.

These spiders eat fish

Scientists discovered spider species which catch and eat fish. These spiders live around shallow rivers, lakes and ponds. They like warmer areas. A lot of them were seen in North America, especially in Florida.

Some spiders can swim and even walk on water. They can catch and eat fish which are bigger and heavier than them. The spiders are usually from two to six centimetres long. After they catch a fish, they move it to a dry place. Then they start eating it. That can take several hours.

People saw a large number of blue jellyfish also. Unlike the big cousin, this kind of jellyfish can hurt you a little.
